Fine Art in the Making at 2006 Spring Garden Festival

SAN DIEGO – The City of San Diego Water Department and the San Diego Watercolor Society have teamed up to offer a special event in celebration of “Water Awareness Month” this May. Local watercolor artists will gather for a “paint-out” demonstration at the Water Conservation Garden’s Spring Garden Festival on Saturday, May 20, 2006, from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. The outdoor demonstration will be held at the gazebo and led by watercolor artist Char Cee Colosia. All community members and the media are invited to attend the festival to observe local artists capturing the beauty of the garden’s water-efficient plants and flowers.

“For the third year in a row, the talent of several watercolor artists will be showcased at this popular festival,” said Luis Generoso, Water Resources Manager for the City of San Diego Water Department. “Our partnership with the San Diego Watercolor Society and the Water Conservation Garden has literally brought about one of the most beautiful ways to express the conservation message.”

“We’re happy to continue this great tradition of celebrating Water Awareness Month by participating in the Spring Garden Festival,” said Valli McDougle, President of the San Diego Watercolor Society. “The Water Conservation Garden is a great venue for our artists. We hope to show people that natural California landscapes can be both water-friendly and attractive.”

The Water Conservation Garden is located on the campus of Cuyamaca College at 12122 Cuyamaca College Drive West in El Cajon. Parking and admission to the Spring Garden Festival is free of charge.
